of the main altar facing the delegate. He said:

"Your Excellency, — Language can earcely express how singularly honored I feel to-night in welcoming Your Excellency into our midst. Welcome, both im my own name and in that of my clergy, than which none is more devoted to the interests of God and His divinely-established church.

"Proud, indeed, are we to have Your Excellency with us to-night, not only because of your eminent talents, your profoud learning, and your many virtues, but also because you come to us as the honored apostolic delegate of the greatest of living men. We are happy to lay at your feet the testimonial of our obedience and loyalty to the vicar of Christ, the Hustrious Pontiff, Leo XIII, whom the whole world honors and revers.

"Truly, Your Excellency, do my clergy and people feet that the great erficiate will mark a new and glorious epoch of progress for Catholicity in Virginia." A brief statement concerning the growth of the church in tosse parts may not prove uninteresting ton fifty years ago, when the dioxed of Virginia formed what are not should not should be controlled what are not should not should be controlled what are not should not should be controlled to the church in the second of the province of the church in the second what are not should not should be controlled what are not should not should be controlled to the church as to have the holy sacrifice clebrated each Sunday.

More Than Fifty Churches.

"Notwithstanding the fact that in 1860 West Virginia was formed into a new diocese, now, in the See of Richmond, proper, there are ten times as many priests as then, and, instead of seven churches, there are more that fifty, in place of three educational institutions in the State, now every parish of the diocese is blessed with its own parachial schools. Then there are in addition a college, several high schools and academies, industrial schools, infant, and orphan asylums and other charitable institutions.

Many Noble Leaders.

"However, under such apostolic and able leaders as a Whelan, a McGill, a Gibbons, a Keane, whose noble efforts were furthered by zealous and energetic priests, and loyal and devoted laity, the most formidable obstacles were intreplidly overcome. To have as bishops such champions of our holy religion was truly one of the greatest blessings for the church in Virginia. And since the days of these illustrious leaders, it has been the constant endeavor of bishops and priests to actively work that they work that they have been considered to the constant endeavor of bishops and the morrow will ever be memorable ones for the clergy and people of Virginia. We feel that by your coming an impetus has been given to the Catholic Church in Virginia that will be felt in the far distant future.

"I desire, then, in my own name and Many Noble Leaders.

Address by Mr. Hagan.

Immediately at the close of the bishop's address, Mr. John C. Hagan, one of the most prominent Catholics of the city, was called forward to speak for the laity. The address by Mr. Hagan was one of the features of the evening. It attracted instant attention and it received the decided approval of His Excellency. When Mr. Hagan had concluded and was turning to leave the sanctuary, Monsignor Falconic called him forward and as he kuelt before him and kissed his ring, reached forward and took the manuscript of the address. The compliment was a gracious one and furthermore a well-deserved one. In welcoming His Excellency, Mr. Hagan said:

A Fitting Visit.

A Fitting Visit.

"It seems to me peculiarly fitting that Your Excellency, who comes as the representative of the head of God's Church on earth to this magnificent and glorious republic of ours, should visit us. For here was the cradle of American illierty. Here a Virginian by his cloquence groused the colonies to action. It was a Virginian who penned the Declaration of Independence; it was a Virginian who exerted the greatest influence in the convention that framed the Constitution; it was a Virginian who led the armies to virginian who led the armies to virginian and the Constitution; it was a Virginian, as the first chief justice, who made the Constitution a living instrument, And as our old State has given so freely of her brain and brawn to the cause of liberty, so has this dear old church, within whise walls we now stand, sent forth from its hallowed precincts those who have become famous in the hierarchy of Mother Church. A prince whose fame is world wide, His Eminence, the Cardinal Archibishop of Baltimore. That distinguished linguist and scholar, the late Right Reverend Bishop of Savannah, and his brilliant successor, the present Right Reverend Bishop of Dubuque. And last, but not least, the present rector of the Catholic University of Washington, who has filled with such distinguished ability svery position to which he has been called.

RESPONSE BY THE DELEGATE.

The response made by Monsignor Falconio was appropriate to the occasion.

The Second Reception.

no speaking and no programme of any sort.

All of the priests were present, as were also bishops and other distinguished visitors. Monsignor Falconlo was, of course, the guest of honor. He was introduced to many, and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

Prominent among the guests was Governor A. J. Montague. Lieutenant-Governor Willard was also there. Among the others present were the Rev. William Meade Clark, rector of St. James' Episcopal Church; the Rev. W. V. Tudor, D. D., presiding elder of West Richmond; the Rev. Robert Strange, D. D., rector of St. Paul's; the Rev. Mr. Randolph, Mr. Wyndham Meredith, Mr. John C. Hagan, Dr. Christopher Tompkins, Mr. Glastow, Mr. Thomas Boilling, Mr. John L. Williams, Mr. Robert S. Bosher, Major I. W. Johnston, and a number of other prominent ministers and laymen.

The laying of the corner-stone Laying.

The laying of the corner-stone will take place about 4 o'clock this afternoon. Monsignor Falconlo will preside and Bishop Van de Vyver and others will participate. The orator for the occasion will be the Rev. Father Pardow, the eninent Jesuit of New York. The outpouring of Catholies promises to be one of the largest ever known in the history of the city.

Jesuit of New York. The outpouring of Catholics promises to be one of the largest ever known in the history of the city.

Much to the regret of all, it is now york, the donor of the great Cathedral, will not be able to be present. Bishop Van de Vyver received a telegram to this effect yesterday.

A great many out-of-town people will be present, however. Many of them have already arrived, and many more will came in to-day. Mr. Joseph McGufre, of New York, architect for the Cathedral, came in last night.

Among the clergy who are already on the ground and who participated in the exercises at the Cathedral last night are the following: Monsignor Falconio, Bishop Donohoe, of West Virginia; Bishop Kelley, of Savannah; the Right Rev. Dr. O'Conneil, of Washington: the Rev. Alph Janssens, of New Orleans, a nephew of Archbishop Janssens; the Rev. Frank Goggin, D., of Rochester, N. Y.; the Rev. Father O'Harn, of Kelser, W. Va.; the Rev. Father Corne, of Old Point; the Rev. Father Corne, of Old Point; the Rev. Father Donohoe, of Martinsburg, W. Va.; and a number of others. Of course, the Richmond clerky, headed by the bishop, were out in good style. Among these there were Father O'Delliy, of Sacred Heart; Father Magri and Father Bowler, of the Cathedral; Father McKeefrey, of St. Patrick's; Father Waters, of Manchester; Father Hannigan, of St. Joseph's, and others.
